I want to take a look!

The author

@maguisiffredi

Magui Siffredi is an illustrator based in Barcelona. Her work is characterised by the use of bright colours, organic lines and a profusion of details, almost reaching horror vacui. She is always experimenting and looking for new ways to tell stories. In his spare time, he is probably hiking, running or reading and drawing comics and picture books.

A picture book that invites the reader to dive into a surprising journey full of imagination, where technology and family life dance in a balanced fusion of humour and reflection. In a world saturated with social media and screens, the story highlights how we lose precious moments and neglect reality for the sake of digital attraction. The expressive and fanciful illustrations not only entertain, but also delve into the importance of bringing technology into perspective in our lives. This book is an essential tool to start a crucial dialogue in modern society, about family connection and the impact of digital technology on our daily lives.

'The most terrifyingly
funny adventure
by Lola Llatas'.

Lucia is a very imaginative child who is always getting into trouble. After 'accidentally' flooding her house, her parents send her to spend a few days with her eccentric great-aunt Agatha, in a dark and ramshackle house. What a nuisance! From the very first moment, Lucia notices that something strange is going on in that house. The curtains close by themselves and three suspicious cats stalk her at all hours. With the help of her best friend, Luis, she starts an exciting and fun adventure to solve the mysteries that surround her. But will she be prepared for what is to come?
